Textile designers and co-owners of fabric house Design Team, Lise Butler and Amanda Haupt are passionate about beautiful things: 'We believe that everything, even the most practical piece of equipment, should be beautiful.' They draw their inspiration from their day-to-day environment, such as in their iconic Towns design. When they choose colours they look at nature, and botanical elements play key roles in all their fabric collections. They are thrilled to be mentoring students at the Tshwane University of Technology, where they both studied and where they started Design Team. The duo hope to teach the students the art of balancing creativity and commercial viability within design, but believe, 'We will most likely learn as much from the students' uninhibited creativity as they do from us.' Their favourite green products are Woolworths' organic cotton basic T-shirts.

Design Team owners were asked to be judges for the House and Leisure designers competition 2008.
